ARRIVING AT HOTEL BY CAR

- The Bundesautobahn 10 - short form: Autobahn 10 - runs around Berlin, hence the nickname Berliner Ring. No matter which direction one enters Berlin from, the „Ring“ comes first and is then connected to the A100.
- The motorway Autobahn 100 - short form: A100 - runs in the middle of Berlin and connects the districts of Mitte, Charlottenburg-Wilmersdorf, Tempelhof-Schöneberg and Neukölln in a south-west arch. It was originally designed as a ring road.
- Depending on which motorway you are coming into Berlin, at one point one will hit the A100.
- Coming from the west, one can follow the same route and directions, as from venue to hotel.
- Coming from the east, one can follow the same route and directions (once they hit the A100) as from the airport to the hotel.

Park Inn by Radisson Berlin Alexanderplatz
Alexanderplatz 7, 10178 Berlin
